- Geographical indications comprise:

PDO – protected designation of origin

PGI – protected geographical indication

PDO & PGI

- The EU geographical indications system protects the names of products that originate from specific regions and have specific qualities or enjoy a reputation linked to the production territory.
- The differences between PDO and PGI are linked primarily to how much of the product's raw materials must come from the area, or how much of the production process has to take place within the specific region.

There are 3 main stakeholders involved;

THE GRAPE GROWERS

The growers work hard all year round to maintain the vineyards healthy and productive. Besides producing top quality grapes, they maintain beautiful green vineyards amidst an otherwise dry Maltese landscape in the summer months.

THE WINERIES

The Wineries transform the grapes produced by the growers or on their estates in white, red or rosé quality wines of various typologies. In order to obtain the certification of DOK or IGT quality, the wineries need to adhere to strict production protocols.

THE AGRICULTURE DIRECTORATE

The Directorate monitors and controls the whole process from the vineyard to the market by performing inspections at vineyards, inspections at grape harvest, sampling and certification at an accredited laboratory and finally checks at market level.
